CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 7 .- The most nteresting spectacle of recent years in politics is Mayor Tom Loftin Johnson's olan of campaigning the State of Ohio his fall in the interest of Democracy.

Several months ago he began to make canvass for the leadership of the Ohio Democracy, outlined his methods of ampaigning and announced that in the fall he would travel from town to town in a manner similar to the movements of the old-time circuses. People at first loubted this statement, but Johnson has made good his promise, opening his campaign at Lorain last night under a huge

The caravan consists of ten wagons and twenty men under the charge of C. J. Wagner, who supervises the tour in person for Mayor Johnson. His close associates are George La Husen, Den Newton and larence Mitchell, the Mayor's henchmen and politicians. Mr. Wagner drives ahead of the procession, attired in a natty white uniform. Then come the three-seat wagons, each of them twenty feet high and loaded with seats and covered with

Then follow the wagons containing the tents, the baggage and the stakes. All of the men with the cavalcade, with the exception of Mr. Wagner, wear khaki trousers and blouses, with blue shirts and campaign hats.

The outfit travels just like the circus of the early days. In the big tent the meetings are held and the speeches made and it is lighted with gasolene torches. The Smaller tents are carried and in the the men and horses sleep and eat. Each of the large wagons bears a sign reading like this: Tom L. Johnson speaks toon the flanks of each horse are huge blue pennants on which are these words: "Ton hnson will speak in the tent to-night Before leaving Cleveland on Friday or Lorain, where the campaign was opened last night, the caravan moved over the principal streets and was reviewed on oliver street, at the Mayor's residence, by Oliver street, at the Mayor's residence, by Mr. Johnson in his red automobile. It then passed down the chief business street lid avenue, and out into the country

Considerable delay was occasioned in starting, owing to the attitude of Washing ton Belle, a large black mare, who refused at first to identify herself with Mayor Tom Democracy. Belle was one of Troop A's horses at McKinley's inauguration, where she imbibed good Republican doctrine and when hitched to a Johnson wagon she used her heels freely and played hob with it. Then "Nig," a small black cur, the mascot of the outfit, tied to a seat, jumped off as Belle was giving her gymnastic exercises and was strangled to death. Belle, though, was soon peacified, a new mascot was pro was soon peached, a new mascot was pro-cured and the circus got under way.

A bugler on horseback rides behind Mr Wagner and the parade moves and halts at his bidding.

When the paraphernalia is set up embles a good-sized Barnum & Bailey sembles a good-sized Barnum & Bailey aggregation. Over the centre pole waves the Stars and Stripes. On one side is the flag of Ohio and on the other is a banner with the name "Tom L. Johnson." Then there are also peanut, popcorn and red lemonade stands, with Tom Johnson canes. lemonade stands, with form Johnson canes, buttons, photographs and even pictures of the tent for sale on every corner. It is understood that the soft drinks dispensers are allowed to travel with the tent and sell their wares outside it without paying any license or commission to the Johnson manifecture. ager. The only stipulation in their permit is that they push the sale of the Johnson outtons, photographs and tent pictures.

Mayor Johnson does not and will not rayel with the caravan. He and his son lieutenants will travel from town town in the red automobile, accompanied ov a chauffeur. While on the road the Mayor expects to make frequent runs into leveland to transact such business as requires his immediate attention and then return in time for the meetings.

The spectacular ruler of the Democratic rosts is evidently looking for trouble or notoriety. He says that any one will be permitted to talk in his meetings. "We shall also invite any Republican in the nited States to attend any of our meet ings and will gladly divide the time with him," said he. "Even the Hon. Marcus A. Hanna is not barred."

The Mayor's tour has been booked and nade up by himself, but all the advance arrangements are made by Mr. Wagner, who is Mr. Johnson's personal representative and close political friend. He supervises the erection of the tents, makes arrangements for the meetings and prepares everything for the reception of the Mayor, who will always arrive late in the day. The expenses of the tour are defrayed stally by the Mayor. The State Demoratic Committee is not contributing a cent oward this campaign, and in fact has nothing whatever to do with it. Now that has no is in absolute control of the party Ohio he is bending all his efforts to ov me a 50,000 plurality and to elect the cket of his personal choice. Defeat of the Republicans in Ohio this ill would put him right in line for the residency, and he is using all of his in-uence to embarrass the State Legislature, ow in special session to provide a form of overnment of Ohio cities and villages. He has not given up hope of defeating ongressman Theodore E. Burton, now candidate for his fourth term. He has tified the National Executive Committee Washington that the Democrats of this istrict will not need any financial assistance this year. A fund of $100,000 will be used to elect Candidate Vail, a blacksmith, s Mr. Burton's opponent.

The Mayor is doing the part of wisdom first visiting Democratic strongholds where he is sure to get flattering receptions and leaving the Republican districts for later attention after once his present plan later attention after once his present plan of campaign is indorsed.

The Johnson caravan to-day moved from Lorain to Norwalk, where a meeting will be held to-morrow night. The schedule therafter follows: Tuesday night, Bellevue; Wednesday, Fremont; Thursday, Port Clinton; Friday, Oat Harbor; Saturday, Toledo; Monday, Sept. 15, Swanton; Tuesday, Napoleon; Wednesday, Defiance; Thursday, Paulding. Then the southwesternpart of the State will be invaded.

HIS CASE LIKE CHIEF CROKER'S. DEAD FAIRS' LAST JOURNEY. APARTMENTS

stated by Commissioner Sturgis. Fire Commissioner Sturgis will reinstate in active duty this morning a member of the ununiformed force who was recently "relieved" like Chief Croker. The Commissioner takes this action in obedience o an order of the Supreme Court.

The subject of the order is John J. Donnolly, inspector of fire-alarm boxes, who was "relieved" from duty and sued for reinstatement after the Commissioner had appointed another man to the job. Donnolly obtained a decision in his favor and the Commissioner was served with a writ to show cause why Donnolly should not be reins sted. Mr. Sturgis had till Aug. 29 to answer, and did not do so. He obtained an extension of time until 5 o'clock last Friday, and in the meantime Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell advised the Commissioner to avoid contempt proceedings, as the Commissioner had no case.

On Saturday Donnolly was ordered to Fire Headquarters and then received instructions in writing to report for duty to-day. He will get back pay from July 15, and the courts will decide later whether or not he shall be paid for the rest of the time during which he was "relieved."

In the papers in the case Donnolly sets forth that on Jan. 13 he was discharged by Commissioner Sturgis without notice on the ground of "reduction of the force." Since his dismissal, he says, the Commissioner has increased the force of the telegraph bureau by the appointment of a dozen linemen and an electrical expert. as the records will show. On July 14 Mr. Sturgis made requisition to the Civil Service Board for an eligible list from which to ap-Board for an eligible list from which to appoint a box inspector, and Donnolly's name was certified for appointment, "taken from the preferred list," on July 15. On the same day Secretary William Leary made a verbal requisition on the Civil Service Board for an eligible list for the place of box inspector, at a salary of $1.800 per annum. Three names were sent to him, taken from a list of applicants examined in 1899. The Secretary of the Civil Service Board said that because the Commissioner. Board said that because the Commissioner called for an eligible list at $1,800 per annum, he could not send Donnoily's name, because he had been receiving only $1,000 a year and could not be placed in the higher grade.

Yet the three men, Donnolly says, were taken from a list of eligibles whose examination had been identical with his, except that he took an extra test in Morse teleg-raphy, for which he received 100 per cent. alone. No such salary as $1,800, he says, was ever paid before for the job, and it is only $300 less than the two present box inspectors receive combined, or $750 more than either of them receives individually.

William L. Guishard, a laborer, has also been reinstated. He was dismissed for reduction in force several months ago.
Albert W. Orr, assistant fire marshal; Claude A. Wanzor, H. C. Clarke and several other men dismissed for the same reason have reinstatement suits pending against the Commissioner.

OTTO BROWN GETS A DIVORCE. His Domestic Troubles Aired in the Courts of Four States.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Sept. 7.-Otto Brown of New York city, after his domestic difficulties had engaged the attention of the ourts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, has secured a divorce here from his wife, Minnie Brown. They were married in New York city, but after a time separated. She instituted suit for separate support, and he went to Pennsylvania. He was arrested at Honesdale, Pa., non-support and taken to New Jersey where he was imprisoned for about sixty days, finally securing his release by habeas corpus proceedings. The husband then disappeared, and his wife went to Honesdale where she caused the arrest of a Mrs. Shrader, a relative of her husband, on the charge of alienating his affections. After a sensational trial lasting two weeks Mrs.

Shrader was acquitted. Brown came here and after establishing a residence, started suit for divorce on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. The wife made answer, alleging desertion and that the divorce suit of her husband was for the purpose of defrauding her of an interest which she had in an estate in Germany, which had been left to the husband by relatives.

SHOT OUT HIS WIFE'S EYE. He Accused Her of Unfaithfulness and Then Fired

Mrs. Thomas Darry of 2001 Tiebout evenue, in The Bronx, had her left eye shot out yesterday by her husband at the home of Mrs. Mary Peterson, 545 East 141st street. Mrs. Darry had been in a hospital for several months, and during that time her husband broke up housekeeping and went to live with his parents. When Mrs. Darry left the hospital last Friday she went to Mrs. Peterson's home. On Saturday night some one told Darry that his wife had gone riding with another man. He went to the Peterson house to investigate and arrived there just after the Petersons and his wife returned from a trolley ride. Darry accused his wife of being unfaithful and, although she denied it, he drew a revolver and shot her. Darry was about to shoot again when the Petersons held him. Mrs. Darry was taken to the Lincoln Hospital. Her hus-band was locked up. He told the police that the revolver had been loaded with a

BODIES OF THE AUTO VICTIMS SENT ON TO SAN FRANCISCO.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs at the Pier to Receive Them From the Mortuary Chapel on the St. Louis Bodies Again Embalmed Here

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair, which arrived on the steamship St. Louis late on Saturday night, were taken off the ship when she came up to her pier yesterday morning and put in a special railroad car which started last night for San Francisco. The bodies were transferred in the presence of Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mr. Fair's sisters, who came from Newport to be present when the bodies reached here. Mr. Oelrichs is in San Francisco awaiting them there. Neither his wife nor Mrs. Vanderbilt went on the train.

Unusual arrangements had been made for the reception of the bodies. This was in charge of Albert Maurer, the sexton of Trinity Chapel in West Twenty-fifth street The north side of the lower deck of the American line pier at the foot of Fulton street was entirely closed to the public and the waiting room used by second cabin passengers was set aside for the use of Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs.

The two ladies drove up in a hired carriage about 9 o'clock, an hour after the ship had docked. Both were attired in deep mourning. Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs immediately went inside the waiting room and then the shades were drawn and watchmen kept every one away from that end of the pier. Meantime two hearses waited on the pier.

As soon as the mourners arrived preparations were begun for removing the bodies from the mortuary chapel on the promenade deck of the St. Louis, where they had rested during the voyage. This chapel was way up forward and was not in view of the passengers. It was in charge of a steward, who put fresh flowers in it every day and saw that the candles were kept day and saw that the candles were kept burning. The coffins rested before an altar, on which was a small crucifix.

In the course of the voyage a great many requests were made by passengers to see the chapel, but the officers of the ship refused these, except in a few cases, in which it was shown to the satisfaction of the officers that the persons making the request were friends of the Fairs. Even after the bodies had been removed yesterday requests from reporters to inspect the chapel were met with refusals. The bodies were in coffins of unpolished

The bodies were in coffins of unpolished maple, around each of which were four bands of silver. Outside of this was a metallic box and outside of this a plain wooden box. They were taken from the ship by longshoremen. The doors of the waiting room were then closed and the coffins opened.

After an interval of about fifteen minutes the doors were opened and the two utes the doors were opened and the two coffins brought out, one being put in each hearse. Mrs. Oelrichs, her sister and their escort followed the hearses in their car-riage to the Grand Central Station. At the station the two coffins were placed in the forward end of the Pullman car Ben Wyzis, which had been chartered as a pri-

The train to which the car was attached was the Chicago special, which did not leave until 6 o'clock. Before this it was found necessary to remove the bodies from the car and take them to an undertaking establishment downtown, where they were subjected to further embalming. They were not brought back until an hour before the train left.

Mrs. Fair was placed a wreath of white roses. There was a wreath of ivy on Mr. Fair's coffin. Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. Vanderbilt remained on the car until about five minutes before it was time for the train to leave. Then they left the station. A representa-tive of the undertaker accompanied the bodies on the train. Funeral services over the bodies of the Fairs were held in the Church of the Made-leine in Paris on Aug. 27, the day they were removed from Paris. A great deal of secrecy was observed in the removal of the bodies. On the ship's manifest they were consigned to Hermann Oelrichs. The burial services will be held in San Fran-

"KING HIGH BALL." A Way Pointed Out to Get Interested in the New Extravaganza.

The new extravaganza at the New York Theatre on Saturday night was not amusing. Before the first performance of "King High Ball" ended at midnight a good part of the audience had departed. Yet there was a way to get interested in this ineffectual play, and that was to contrast it with the others of the same class now prospering in Broadway. By that process the progress in stage art, even in folly shows, could be comprehended. The manner of the production was obsolete, and there was nothing in the matter as there had been in "King Dodo" last spring, for example—to make people accept old things with new zest. A march of Amazons may still please us if it is an incident with jolly fun before and after it, but not if it is only a change from the futile efforts of comedians and soubrettes to be laughable with pointless jokes and witless songs. Even a ballet brought forward from the same period as "The Black Crook" may be favorably looked at if it holds a brief space among bright sights that are modern, but not if it is only a part of a general dulness. would gratify curiosity to discov where the designs for the scenery of "King High Ball" came from. They can hardly have been made for the purpose that they now serve, or for the mounting of any play within a dozen years. They are the work of an excellent artist, finely drawn, with an ingenious fancy, but old-fashioned now and foreign always. However, the paint and canvas appear to be fresh, and it is a guess that the models for some longago spectacle have been utilized anew. The theme of the present play, a trip to another planet, has been illustrated on the stages of many lands these years and years, and probably from one of those sources the settings of the two acts in Mars have been copied. If they were original here, the money they had cost would have commanded equally artistic pictures in the different fashion of to-day. But even if the scenery was thus obtained, why put ballets from the past into it? For the sake of harmony?

MAID OF PATUCA A FILIBUSTER

LITTLE STEAMER LEAVES BAL-TIMORE FOR COLOMBIA.

It Is Relieved She Is Carrying Arms and Ammunition to the Insurgents John Toole, Engineer of Famous Cuban Fillbuster, in Command-Crew Armed.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 7 .- With every nember of her crew armed with a rifle and wearing a belt loaded with cartridges. the little steamer Maid of Patuca left Baltimore to-day on her long voyage to South The agents of the steamer in this city have given out the announcement that she is to be used in building a jetty at the mouth of the River Patuca in Honduras, but the general impression prevails that the steamer is a genuine filibuster and that she is carrying ammunition to the insurgents in

From the cargo which she is carrying south there is every reason to believe that this is her true errand. In her hold are cases of dynamite and boxes of rifles, with a large quantity of emmunition and similar warlike stores that would be of great value to the fighting insurgents. Had her journey been merely a peaceful voyage to Honduras to build a jetty it is not likely that this warlike material would have been carried along.

With their guns and cartridge belts, the crew presented a most piratical appearance, and they seemed quite out of place on the little steamer. The crew numbers twelve, including the captain.

Practically in charge of the entire outfit is a man who has had considerable experience in filibustering expeditions. He is John Toole of this city, who was an engineer on the Three Friends when she was engaged in running arms to the fighting Cubans, struggling for independence before the United States came to their assistance. Before going on the Three Friends he was also employed in several filibuster-ing steamers. Several other members of the crew were also on the Three Friends. The Patuca came here last spring, and during the last three months Toole has been on board continuously. All orders in regard to repairs came from Cleveland. About two weeks ago an agent came here and registered at the Carrollton under the name of W. G. Dillhoefer. Signs of activity at once became noticeable about the teamer, and preparations were begun or her voyage. Several days ago she for her voyage. took a trial trip down the river and every-thing was found to be in a satisfactory condition.

Since the trial trip several wagonloads of boxes have been put on board, containof boxes have been put on board, containing, it is supposed, ammunition and dynamite for the Colombian insurgents. All were marked "Maid of Patuca. Skinner's Shipyard. Notify Mr. Dillhoefer, at the Carroliton." Nearly all the boxes were from out-of-town places, and are supposed to have been bought at different places, in order not to excite suspicion of the real destination and purpose of the steamer. Every one on board avoided answering all questions in regard to the steamer and her destination.

The steamer is owned by a company of which William F. Vilet of Cleveland is said to be the president. All instructions have to be the president. All instructions have been sent by him, and it was under express directions from him that she was provisioned, coaled, &c. The list of provisions, too, was a curiosity in itself, including many delicacies of which an ordinary seaman dreams. The provisions alone on the Patuca cost $500, the itemized list being made out by President Vliet.

The steamer is an entirely new boat and was built in Cleveland. She is 98 feet long, 20 feet beam and has about 8 feet depth of hold. She draws 61/2 feet of water and carries twenty-three tons of coal in her bunkers.

The voyage to Colombia is a dangerous feat in the little vessel, exclusive of feat in the little vessel, exclusive of the dangers that may be encountered at the end of the trip. She will go by inland waters to Beaufort, N. C., where she will be compelled to put to sea and skirt the coast all the way down to Florida. All the crew were shipped for Key West, but there is said to be an understanding that each and every one will be reengaged there for the mbian trip. The story originally given out by the The story originally given out by the agents was that a company had been organized to develop a tract of 20,000 acres of land which had been given it by the Honduras Government. A small town was to be built, farms staked off and the Patuca was to be used in the carrying trade along the river. The Government also was said to have granted the company a monopoly. to have granted the company a monopoly of the carrying trade.

The Weather.

The pressure was high yesterday from Texas northeastward to the middle Atlantic coast and thence northward over the New England States to Nova Scotla. The low pressure noted over the Lake Superior district on Saturday had been dissipated. Another low-pressure area had however, moved down from the British north west, and was central over North Dakota. It was followed by an area of high pressure which appeared on the north Pacific coast.

It was from 6 to 18 degrees warmer over the

the Holy Sepulchre. *The Sacredness of Labor and the Coal War" was the subject of the Rev. Walter Bentley's sermon yesterday morning at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, East Seventy-fourth street near Park avenue. Mr. Bentley was for some time assistant to Dr. R. Heber Newton at All Souls' Church, recently accepted the rectorship of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. He enered upon his duties there yesterday.

These are some of the things Mr. Bentley "We have had come to us an apostle; not a Paul of Tarsus, but an apostle to America; a man who knows and realizes the sacredness and responsibilities of capital and labor; a noble-hearted man, who cannot be bought or sold. Thank God that we have a man, our Bishop, who knows his business.

OHARGES AGAINST MILITIAMEN. Major Smith Presses the Case Against Col. Bates and Major Marsh.

It was learned yesterday that Major Clinton H. Smith of the Seventy-first Regiment has followed up his letter to Gen. George Moore Smith, commanding the First Brigade, alleging that Col. W. G. Bates and Major Marsh of the Seventy-first had sent in improper claims against the State, by formal charges, which are to go before Major-Gen. Roe.

Gen. Smith, Col. Bates and Major Smith were all members of the Auditing Board appointed by an act of the last Legislature to adjust claims of officers and men of the eventy-first Regiment for loss in the

This board, of which Lieut.-Col. J. H Wells was also a member, has completed, its work and forwarded the claims approved to the Adjutant-General. The claim of Col. Bates and Major Marsh which Major Smith alleged were improper, have not been forwarded. The law required that only claims for losses not dovered by in-surance should be submitted, and Major asserts that Col. Bates and Majo

Marsh put in claims which had already been covered by insurance. On the other hand, both of the officers accused are said to have made known the fact that they had received some insur-ance on the claims which they had put in against the State before Major Smith made any accusations against them. Gen Smith has stated that they voluntarily put themselves on record as submitting ac put themselves on record as submitting ac-counts which the law might hold to be inadmissible for payment, and that they further said that they desired the accounts withdrawn if deemed improper.

Thursday night Mr. Cavanaugh heard the screech of a wildcat in the woods. He told his nephew of what he had heard and they went into the woods the next day to secure the animal. They were armed with a shotgun. After beating about in the woods for some time they heard a large tree. and there discovered the animal. Cavanaugh approached carefully, and when he was near enough, took stead; aim and fired. The wildcat fell to the ground, kicking spasmodically for an in stant, and then lay still.

Cavanaugh and his nephew waited a few ninutes and then approached the animal minutes and then approached the animal. To all appearances it was dead, and Cavanaugh grabbed it by the hind legs preparatory to carrying it away. But that cat had more than one life, for as soon as Cavanaugh more than one life, for as soon as Cavanaugh reached out it curled up and began to fight. It got Cavanaugh's fingers in its teeth and held them there. McGuigan came to his relative's assistance and managed to make the animal release its hold. But it did so only to jump on McGuigan' shoulder and bite his cheek. Then Cav anaugh shot it and it fell over dead.

The wildcat was taken to Catskill and is on exhibition there. It is the largest seen in that part of the Catskill Mountains in some years, being three feet in length. Cavanaugh's fingers had been bitten through

MOROS REJECT PEACE OFFERS

AMERICAN OUTPOSTS HAVE BEEN ATTACKED TWELVE TIMES.

Aggressive Campaign Seems the Only Solution of the Problem Gens. Chaffee and Davis Consulting on Plans for an Advance One American Killed.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. Manila, Sept. 7. Capt. Pershing, who has been investigating the causes of the recent attacks upon the Americans in the Island of Mindanao, reports that the Moros reject all offers of friendship, and that all hope of an adjustment of the difficulties with the natives has been abandoned. The Sultans and the Dattos are treacherous and not to be trusted. One of them promised to remain neutral for a month, but a week later he guided a force of Moros in an attack upon an American post on the Mataling River. The other chiefs demand that the Americans evacuate the islands. Gen. Chaffee and Gen. Davis are holding extended conferences on the situation. The original forces in Mindanao have been increased largely, and probably the next attack by the Moros will lead the Americans to retaliate thoroughly.

Since the battle at Mayan the American troops have remained in their camps and in no instance have they assumed the aggressive, although they have been attacked twelve times. Gen. Chaffee has planned for thorough protection of the friendly natives in the event of a general movement.

In the attack upon the Mataling River camp, which is situated seven miles from Vickers, one American was killed and three wounded. The small garrison temporarily retreated, abandoning the body of their comrade who had been killed. Later they recovered their wounded. When reënforce ments were obtained the Americans pursued the Moros, killing several of them. In the pursuit Lieut, Parker was wounded.

When the boarders read the sign they proceeded to build a spite fence six feet higher than the sign. Sunday morning Capt. Cory, who is a man of mach determination and waighs readly of much determination and weighs nearly 200 pounds, straddled the high fence and gracefully added two more feet of fence on top of the Kramer addition and nailed an American flag on top of that.
